

News from British Pacific Properties
November 25, 2010

British Properties Highgrove Home Named Best in BC

West Vancouver. The Urban Development Institute Pacific Region yesterday announced that a home in British Properties' Highgrove development in West Vancouver earned the 2010 title of "Best Single Family Home Over 3,500sq.ft."

The 6,500 sq ft residence serves as the display home for the new HighGrove neighbourhood adjacent to Whitby Estates. "We are very honoured and thrilled that the British Prosperities combination of quality construction with understated luxury has been recognized in this way," said BPP President James McLean.

The prize winning home built by British Pacific Homes, BPP's custom home design and construction arm, features a wealth of amenities including exquisite artisan millwork, innovative heat pump heating and airconditioning, state-of-the-art appliances, view terraces and an outdoor fireplace. The home qualifies for the "Built Green- Gold", one of the highest levels of green efficiency.

Design for the three level home, was led by Creekside Architects and British Properties' in-house design team. Interiors are by Insight Design.

"We have been pleased with the positive reception that this generation of homes has received in the marketplace. The first phase of HighGrove entirely sold, with the second phase now being marketed" said McLean. "Our mountainside homes are living up to their reputation as the most desirable residential properties in Canada."

British Pacific Homes builds all these homes "to order".

For further information, please contact:

James McLean – 604.925.9000, jdm@britishproperties.com

Virginia Bird – 604.801.5008, vbird@pottingerandassociates.com

